Arguments End and Matter Goes to the Supreme Court Justices.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SMYTH IS SHUT OUT

His Injection of Bryan Into the Case Results in His Being Compelled to Forego His Own Special Speech.

WASHINGTON, April 7 .- (Special Telegram.)-Argument in the maximum rate cases was finished at 3 o'clock today, Mr. Webster closing for the state in an hour's plea, asking the court to try the law, put it in operation and then if it was found onerous by the railroads that they might form and ask intervention and relief; that uptil and ask intervention and relief; that uptil Webster closing for the state in an hour's and ask intervention and relief; that until the law was in practical operation it could not for a certainty be told whether the rates as erected by the law were of so damaging a character as Chancellor Woolworth had alleged. James C. Carter, senior counsel for the railroad companies, closed for his side in a strong argument, paying some attention to Mr. Bryan's position, and taking the standpoint that his (Bryan's) position was all the railroads wanted.

There was a bit of side play in connection with the closing of the case that was greatly enjoyed by those who understood the comedy. When Mr. Wooiworth closed yesterday Attorney General Smyth was prepared to take up this morning one feature of the case to which he had given especial attention, but Mr. Carter in a quiet way objected contending that under the rules of the court there could not be two arguments for the state in rebuttal. The court acquiesced and Mr. Carter proceeded to close. Just as 2 o'clock came Mr. Carter took his seat and then there was a whispered consultation bewould close. Chief Justice Fuller indicated eral Smyth, who had invited his friend. Mr. Bryan, into the case, found that he had been jockeyed out of position and had come 1,500 miles to listen to the argument without being able to say a word.

MAKING A FIGHT ON JOHNSON. South Dakota republicans in Washington will make an effort to have the nomination of Nathan P. Johnson as agent of the Sisseton Indians in South Dakota rejected by the senate or else withdrawn by the presi-dent. The nomination, when it was made last week, was a great surprise to the powers -Messrs. Pickler, Gamble, Kittredge and Eliott—and there was a great scramble to find out something about the nominee when they heard of the president's action. It was discovered that he is a farmer in Kingsbury county and is the son of an Ohio His principal backer was Senator Foraker of Ohio, and it was on his recommendation that the appointment was made. Senator Kyle is holding up nominations that further investigation may be made. Senator Thurston presented today a large mass of correspondence from constituents in Nebraska, baving a direct bearing on the tariff bill. The Omaha Bemis Bag company wants jute looked after closely; H. F. Clarke of Omaha asks that hides be taken care of in of Plattsmouth, and A. Polack of Omaha want leaf tobacco adjusted. A. INVESTIGATING GRAIN SHIPMENTS.

Commission Calls for Records of Joint

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The Interstate Commerce commission has notified the roads making up the Joint Traffic association to forward to the commission by next Saturday full information about grain shipments and contracts and agreements in force between April 1, 1896, and March 1 1897. These roads have been complained of as discriminating in rates for grain and grain products from Chicago and other Illimois points to the Atlantic seaports at various times between January 1 and March 15 iast. The action has created considerable agitation among railroad officials and is excted to reveal which roads have been cut ting rates. The notice calls for verified topies of all contracts and agreements in lorce between the dates relating to the shipment, transportation, transfer in transit switching or transferring loaded cars from one line to another, loading and unloading. looring or warehousing of grain or products or the passing of grain through elevators and of all contracts relating thereto or leases of storehouses or elevators situated upon premises owned or controlled by the roads which have been, since April 1, 1896, used or are now used by others than those roads for storing or elevating grain. A showing in detail of the terms and conditions of contracts, agreements or understandings not reduced into writing is also called for.

The roads thus called upon to answer tharges are: Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylavania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & Western Indiana, Chicago & Erie, Erie, Michigan Central, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, New York Central, Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago; Pittsburg, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis; Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis; Louisville, New Al-bany & Chicago; Louisville & Nashville, Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton; Chicago & Northern Pacific, Pittsburg & Western, Baltimore & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio, Southwestern, Columbus, Hocking Val-ley & Toledo; Cincinnati, Portsmouth Virginia, Norfolk & Western, Indiana, linois & Iowa; Ashland Coal and Iron and Italiway company, Chicago, Hammond & Western; Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Elgin, Joliet & Eastern, Belt Railway company of Chicago, Northern Indiana Railroad com-pany, Chicago, Lake Shore & Eastern; Indiana Southern, New York, Chicago & St. Louis; Wabash, West Shore and the Lehigh

> INTEREST IN ARMOR PLATE BIDS. Not Expected to Come Within the Limit Fixed by Congress.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Captain Sampson, chief of the Naval Ordnance bureau, is preparing for the use of Secretary Long a synop tical sketch of the visit of inspection just made by him of the five plants of the Illinois Steel company in Illinois and Wisconsin. Tomorrow is set as the date for opening proposals for supplying the navy with about 6,000 tons of armor for the new battleships, and as a result of the legisla-tion of congress upon this subject the out-come is awaited with great interest by the entire iron industry of the country. lished armor plants for supplying this armor within the limit of $300 per ton fixed by congress. It is expected, however, that the Illinois company will bid within this figure and in order to ascertain the capabilities of the Illinois' company Captain Sampson made a trip to the west and his conclusions will be laid before the secretary In advance of the opening of the bids to

In substance, Captain Sampson's conclusions are that the Illinois company, while splendidly equipped for its present line of business and endowed with unexcelled nat-ural resources, could not be expected to begin the delivery of armor plate within a less period than two years after the award of a contract. In this conclusion he takes issue with the company's officers who con-tend that they can begin their output within eight menths after contract. The second vice president of the Illinois company, it is said intil recently was principal salesman of the Carnegie Steel company, and it is largely upon the technical information he has absorbed during his connection with the latter concern that the Illinois company relies on its estimates of cost of production and time of deliveries of armor.

PROPOSED MISSION OF FOSTER. Ex-Secretary Not Certain that He Wil

Go to Constantinople. WASHINGTON, April 7 .- Ex-Secretary J. W. Foster had a long interview with Secrea different manner than that proposed by the Dingley tariff bill. The Cigar Makers Union bill. He then walked over to the white tary Sherman and Assistant Secretary Rockhouse and saw the president. Of course the movements were immediately connected with the supposed intention of the president to send Mr. Foster to Turkey as a special amundertake the collection from the porte of the indemnities claimed by the United States in behalf of the missionaries for the destruction of their property and hardships imposed upon them as a result of the rioting last year in Asiatic Turkey.

After his interview with the president Mr. Foster was asked the direct question whether or not he was to go to Turkey. He replied that he had supposed the declination of the sultan to create an embassy in Washington ngress was an unusual proceeding, only warranted by great emergencies, and he was not advised as to the view the president would take of the suggestion. Congress would probably act favorably upon his recommendation; but, if he should not think roper to adopt that course, Mr. Foster felt uite sure the president would find a man of standing and ability to represent our government in Turkey, and who, under proper astructions from Washington, would be able to bring about a satisfactory adjustment of

Speaker Reed.

WANTS THE COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Occupant of the Chair Replies in : Cool, Dignified Manner and Elicits Great Applause from the Republicans.

WASHINGTON, April 7.-The house acted promptly today on the president's message entire iron industry of the country, as is and adopted a joint resolution authorizing the secretary of war to expend $200,000 for the relief of the flood sufferers of the Mississippi valley. The most interesting feature of the session was a passage between Representative Simpson and Speaker Reed. Mr. Simpson gave voice to the opposition to the speaker's temporary policy of inaction, which has been smouldering in some quarters, by speaking to a question of privilege. He finished a fiery denunciation of the speaker by demanding that he appoint the committees of the house at once, and gave notice that he would prevent any more attempts to do business by unanimous consent. Several republican members attempted to stem the tide of Mr. Simpson's attack, but Mr. Reed seemed to desire to hear it, and declined to interfere. He listened to the speech, and then with his usual coolness and lucidity replied that the speaker was merely the instrument of the house; that he had enforced what he supposed to be the policy desired by the majority and that the house had power to command the speaker if it disapproved of his course. The republicans expressed their approval by a round of handclapping.

Mr. Simpson had endeavored to secure the indicating that he desired to speak on a question of the highest privilege. "I have read an article by Senator Hoar, which retransportation of the raw materials and of flects on the house of representatives, and the other considerations, the company itself as a member of the house I desire to enter is in excellent condition to undertake any my protest," said he. He sent to the clerk to be read, a clipping from a Washington paper. This article declared that the members of the house had been robbed of their

> "what the speaker in his own flowery lan-guage calls retrospective legislation," Mr. guage calls retrospective legislation." Mr. Dingley interposed an objection that Mr. Simpson had not stated any question of privilege, but the speaker decided that the member from Kansas might continue. The newspaper article was exceedingleferce, and when it had been read, Mr. Steele republican of Indiana, jumped to his feet, shouting: "This is no question of privilege,

> The republicans refused to adjourn, and they cried: "No," "no." REED KEEPS COOL. Speaker Reed very calmly ruled on the motion to adjourn, saying: "The motion cannot be entertained at present."
> "When it was stated in a newspaper, during the Fifty-first congress, that members were seen drunk on the floor," Mr. Simpson "that was considered a question of privilege." The point which he now raised, he de-clared, was one of higher privilege. There-upon, he waved aloft a copy of the Forum and proceeded to read rapidly from an article by Senator Hoar, entitled: "Has the Senate

Degenerated?" The extract which he quoted was: "The promptness with which the house of representatives deals with some important ques-tions is a good thing; but its capacity for prompt action is purchased at the price of repudiation of public debts and the suppresion of constitutional rights, dignity and official authority of the great majority of its members. Gentlemen, from the beginning to the end of their term, are not permitted to make a motion or to utter a word to the assembly of which they are members. Permade it impracticable for the president to make a motion or to utter a word to the nominate him as ambassador and that he had abandoned any expectation he may have entertained about going to Constantinople.

The creation of a special envoy by act of endure if it were applied to both houses Mr. Simpson read very rapidly, and Mr. Steel protested in an angry tone, but the speaker paid from Indiana. paid no attention to the gentlema

SIMPSON WAXES WARM, "I represent a large district," shouted the Kansan, tossing down the magazine, "and the refusal of the speaker to appoint the committees of this house deprives me and my constituents of the right to do business. I propose to rise here and protest against this autocratic dictation. It is reported in the newspapers that the speaker gays the trouble is that if the committees were appointed where one just claim passed there would be ton unjust ones. Is not this a reflection on this house? I ask the honorable speaker? In the Fifty-first congress the power of the minority to protest was taken away and the speaker given veto power. It is unsafe to give one man such power, for where one despot of 100 might use his power wisely, the other ninety-nine might prove bad spots."

The speaker had come into Kansas during the clerking and had said on the strumble. the election and had said on the stump that for four years the Seventh congressional district (Mr. Simpson's) had been represented by chaos. When the speaker refused to ap-point committees the house was ruled by

REED REPLIES.

There was a profound silence when Speake Reed began to explain his policy. He said: There was a profound silence when Speaker Reed began to explain his policy. He said:

The house will perceive that the grentleman from Kansas (Mr. Simpson) has made no proposition whatever upon the subject. He has simply stated his own views, and the chair has thought before it was best that the matter should be stated and that the house should consider it. So far as the power of the speaker is concerned, every one who has made the subject the matter of consideration understands that his power is solely the power of, the house, and the house can at any moment change the action which its representative sees fit to indulge im. The house has the power at all times, and while the rules of the house require certain committees to be appointed there has always been allowed to the chair a reasonable amount of discretion as to the time when they should be appointed. Opportunity is always allowed to the chair to find out something about members, so that he may do the duties which are imposed upon him in the most intelligent way of which he is capable. It is not a rare case that the speaker has not appointed committees at once. A congress which was called together under circumstances something like the present, the Forty-second, was presided over by a very eminent man. Mr. Blaine, and he declined, not declined, but did not see fit to appoint committees. The matter was brought up in the house and he gave his reasons therefor, and those reasons were approved by the house on the subject.

There are about 150 new members in the bouse. Under ordinary circumstances the occupant of the chair has time from the 4th of March to the first Monday in December to obtain information in regard to his fellow members, but under the present circumstances there has been no opportunity. We have been called together in extraordinary session, and the question was, what is the best course for us to pursue; whether we should fail in appointing the committees until such times as would make the appointments more suitable, or whether the public service was in such a condition that that ought to be done. The chair has had full consultation with the various members, as he has met them, upon the subject, and until this morning he supposed it was the unanimous feeling of the house that it was not necessary to appoint the committees in haste, because the public service did not require it. The chair is sorry to see that any gentleman in the house has lent himself to the suggestions which are sometimes made outside of the house with regard to the power of the chair. It is a power that is given to him by the house for its purpose alone, not for any selfish purposes, not for him to carry out any personal desires or designs of his own, but to carry out the wishes of the house as he understands them after a faithful and conscientious examination of the subject. If the house thinks that any occupant of the chair is not carrying out its wishes, is not acting as its representative, the remedy is in the hands of the that any occupant of the chair is not carring out its wishes, is not acting as its replacementative, the remedy is in the hands of thouse at any time, and the chair cheerful welcomes any action on the part of thouse, whose representative he is. PRESIDENT OFF FOR AN OUTING. beaves, with Mrs. McKinley, for Trip Down the Potomac.

WASHINGTON, April 7 .- President Mc Kinley affixed his signature to the resolution for the relief of the Mississippi flood sufferers shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon, and immediately jointed Mrs. McKinley and the other members of the party waiting below for the trip down the Potomac. In the white house carriage were the president and Mrs. McKinley, Mrs. Saxton and a maid. The secretary's carriage was occupied by the president's secretary, Mr. Porter and Mrs. Porter. These and Dr. Bates, the president's physician, and Mrs. Bates, composed the party. Dr. Anderson, who is attached to the Dolphin, will also make the trip. There were few people at the white house at the time, and the departure was without incident. The trip will be made in the United States steamship Dispatch The exact time of the president's return is not known, but if the weather continues good and Mrs. McKinley's health seems to be benefited by the trip, it is probable that the party will not return before the last of the week.

Senate Routine. WASHINGTON, April 7.-Cuba and the flood sufferers divided attention in the cenate today. The reading of the president's message, urging congressional relief for the was followed by the passage of a toint resolution, offered by Senator Jones of Arkansas, appropriating $150,000 to be immediately available for the flood sufferers. It was passed by the unanimous vote of the senate The plans were changed, however, when the house resolution appropriating $200,000 for the Mississippi river and Red River of the North was received. This was accepted in lieu of the former resolution and was passed unanimously. Mr. Morgan of Alabama resumed his speech in support of the resolution, declaring that a state of war exists in Cuba. It was uneventful and failed to develop any renewal of the sharp personal conflict of yesterday. Mr. Morgan referred to General Wey-ler's orders, herding together people in the towns and villages of Cuba, for the purpose of starving them. How long, he asked, was this captain general to continue in power, issuing new orders day after day, as his whim or caprice might dictate, resulting in the itmost harshness against American citizens At 2 o'clock the senate went into execu-

Pingree Issues an Address.

DETROIT, Mich., April 7 .- Governor Pingree issued an address to the citizens of Michigan today declaring than the defeat of Captain Stewart for mayor of Detroit is not a defeat for the governor. Mr. Pingree asto carry on the old fight against the street railway "combination" and will have his (Pingree's) unqualified assistance. In the course of his address Governor Pingree states that "there has been a reaction in tion of Joseph R. Francis, democrat, the politics all over the country. Iowa, Ohio first time a democrat has ever represented and other states and cities that gave enormous republican majorities last fall, have elected democratic officers this spring. I predicted after the fall election that the republican party would never win another vic-tory for the single gold standard, and I am today firmer than ever in my belief. There is a reaction in favor of bimetallism which all parties will be compelled to recognize."
In conclusion the governor says he sees nothing in the situation to discourage the friends of popular rights.
